

What's Happening at Abbott House

News Bites About Staff and Friends Who Help Us Meet Our Mission

Abbott House Profiled in The New Yorker

Each year our Transitional Resources for Children (TRC) Program welcomes hundreds of Central American immigrant children who cross the border alone after escaping violence in their home countries. For most, seeking asylum in the United States is their only chance of survival. These children, like so many others who rely on our programs, find safety at Abbott House.

Recently, The New Yorker published an article by Sarah Stillman titled, "The Race To Dismantle Trump's Immigration Policies."

In her thorough reporting, Stillman recounts the traumatic experiences of several young asylum seekers, including a child named Maria, formally under the care of Abbott House, and her continued fight to remain in the United States.

We encourage you to read this story in its entirety, despite its emotional subject matter. Children like Maria are counting on Abbott House, and we will not stop fighting for them.

MLK Virtual Food Drive a Success

In the spirit of this year's Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service we invited you to help us feed families who are struggling with food insecurity.

Thanks to YOU, our Virtual Food Drive raised $1,200 to help provide grocery gift cards and other support to families in need! The COVID-19 Pandemic has continued to ravage our communities in so many ways, and every little bit helps, especially when it comes to household essentials. Thank you for making a difference from a distance!
